"GUILTY UNDER CONDITIONS"

Goodly Array of Penitents to Whom

The redoubtable Mike O'Grady, a soldier of two wars, and since then engaged in many a skirmish with the forces of King Alcohol in which he has been vested as many times, was again victim of a flank attack begun Saturday night by General Whiskey's division and completed by the forces under Chief Barlow. It was only a couple of weeks ago that O'Grady blundered on the skirmish line and had to capitulate to the enemy, for which he was courtmarshaled and sentenced to the disgrace of forfeiting 10 numbers. Last Tuesday he sallied forth again and "ran up against some comrades," who had served with him "in two wars," and in the reunion O'Grady was caught napping and asleep on his post. His excuse was that he was a little intoxicated, but the judge-advocate this morning thought the offense was one requiring discipline, and O'Grady, soldier, lost another 20 numbers. With the characteristic obedience of the true soldier, he accepted his lot with "Oh, all right."

W. R. Mitchell, a telegrapher known throughout the west as "Bill," came to grief this morning through his unswerving allegiance and loyalty to Bacchus. Last week Mitchell, led by his devotion to the wine god, became implicated in the theft of a typewriter. The court was considerably and sentence was suspended 10 days in order to give Mitchell an opportunity to prove to the court that his offense had been a drunken error and that he would go to work in the city and forsake the Bacchanalian route. Mitchell evidently turned to the left Saturday night and got to the right road. He will now have to tramp wearily the rock path for 60 days.

Henry Carson and L. H. Slater admitted, by forfeiting $5 each that they had been drunk enough to require the attention of an officer.

F. Hardeman, who looks like, and claims to be, a Catholic, missed his cue today. Believing in the equality of all men, Hardeman yesterday started out to exercise the right to get drunk. He followed through, and the way and succeeded in reaching the level of many another man who has faced Judge Bowman. He missed his cue this morning, however, and, perhaps the court attaché didn't understand that Hardeman still insists on equality. He had announced his determination to plead not guilty, and then it was understood that he would change his plea. When he was brought into court he said he would "plead guilty under conditions." When he was told that he must plead without condition he changed his mind again, and demanded a jury trial. He will have until Aug. 28, to prepare his case for the jury.

The Poulton Music company, through attorney, pleaded guilty this morning to having conducted its business for a couple of weeks without the proper mercantile license, and was fined $10. In suggesting the fine the Prosecutor Rogers intimated that the failure to obtain a license had been a matter of neglect, but that the company had not obeyed the provisions of the ordinance.

Joe Wheeler pleaded guilty to having stolen a suit case from Ed Gleason, and was sentenced to serve six months in the city jail.

Annie Warner, a winsome young girl, denied that she had struck Mark Hoffman, and her father assured the court that she would be present August 26, with her witness to prove the falsity of the complaint of battery.

"JUMPED ON," FOUGHT BACK.

Martin Knutsen was found guilty of having disturbed the peace Saturday night, and was fined $10. Knutsen's story was that he had gone into a saloon on east First South street to get a glass of beer, and while in there, another man without any provocation had "jumped on" him. When the two were separated by friends, Knutsen had gone out the front door of the saloon, while the other man went out the back way and ran around the alley corner, meeting Knutsen in front of the Majestic theater, where the quarrel was renewed. Officers Griffiths and Rhodes testified that they had caught Knutsen, with two other men, disturbing the peace, and the court found Knutsen guilty.

FINES, CONTINUANCES, ETC.

Five vagrants accepted floaters, but John Anderson, although he expressed a strong desire to leave the city, will stay 30 days longer, as an example to other street beggars.

El D. Morgan refused to admit that he is a vagrant and his hearing, also another lesson, was set for far off as Aug. 28.

ABANDONMENT TOMORROW.

William Powers, the highwayman who was captured by the Japanese Saturday night, will be arraigned tomorrow morning on a charge of robbery. The complainant is G. Kaneko, who alleges that Powers robbed him of $210.

A complaint was filed today against Maggie Kinney, the negress who is alleged to have robbed Thomas Brott, a veteran, of $20, charging her with grand larceny. She will be arraigned tomorrow.

H. Bradley asked the statutory time in which to plead to the charge of resisting Patrolman J. M. Lyon, and will enter his plea tomorrow.

CROWDS PRESENTED TO HIS EMINENCE

Throng of Three Thousand Greet Cardinal at Bishop Scanlan's Residence.

The reception to Cardinal Gibbons on Saturday afternoon was attended by about 3,000 people, who thronged the residence of the Right Rev. Laurence Scanlan, bishop of Salt Lake, for two hours, from 4 to 6 p. m. Among the callers were people of all faiths as well as devout Catholics, all of whom were anxious to meet the ranking prelate of the Catholic church in America, whose visit to Salt Lake City is now recorded for the first time. The deeply religious attended with a feeling of reverence, regarding his eminence in the light of God's representative, while others attended out of curiosity to see, and respect for the man whose authority in the affairs of the church is so great, and whose vote assists in the selection of the head of the Catholic church in all the world. As a member of the college of cardinals this is the first time that the cardinal has been seen in person by the people of Salt Lake, and at this time was invested with an unusual interest for all classes of people.

Some time before the time set for the formal reception of the cardinal and automobiles had deposited a great number of people at the residence of Bishop Scanlan. These were ushered into the reception room shortly after 4 o'clock by a number of little girls. As they entered they were met by Joseph Geoghegan and by him were presented to Bishop Scanlan, who in turn presented them to the guests of honor. After greeting the cardinal the guests were then presented in turn to Right Rev. Dennis J. O'Connell, coadjutor archbishop of St. Paul, and Right Rev. Alphonse J. Glozier, bishop of Idaho; His Grace John S. Foley, archbishop of Detroit, and His Grace John J. Glennon, archbishop of Portland.

Mrs. W. McCannell was the hostess of the occasion. With her in the receiving line were Mrs. O. J. Salsbury, Mrs. Frank Judge, Mrs. Jasper A. McCannell, Mrs. J. C. McCormick and Mrs. Genevieve McCormick.

The plainness of the furnishings, which are characteristic of the residence of every Catholic prelate, was relieved by festoons of American flags and clusters of flowers. The green and gold back of the cardinal's throne were entwined with flags, and his coat of arms appeared on a background of red and white.

During the reception an incident occurred which illustrates the retentive memory of the cardinal. Mrs. P. L. Hannifan of Pocatello was being presented when the cardinal smiled and said:

"My dear, I have met you before."

"Yes, your eminence," replied Mrs. Hannifan.

The meeting, it transpired, had taken place more than ten years ago, when Mrs. Hannifan, as Miss Mary Burke, resided in Boston and took part in the singing soprano solo in the dedicatory services of the cathedral of St. Mary of the Assumption at Bar Harbor, Mich.

The group of prelates made a striking picture in their robes of office. The bishops wore purple robes, in addition to which the archbishops wore red sashes and linings. The cardinal wore a trailing robe of bright scarlet.

AD CLUB AT WANDAMERE.

As the guests of the management, the members of the Salt Lake Ad club will have an outing at Wandamere next Tuesday in place of the regular meeting which is scheduled for that day. Preparations are being made to have the advertising men take the 6 o'clock car in a body and after "seeing the tiger" a luncheon will be spread. The luncheon will be for the members of the old fashioned "picnic party," where each lady takes enough food for two, and a family table is spread. At the lunch table the business of the meeting will be transacted and some informal talks given. The executive board has planned some facts that the members are not willing to make public in advance, but it is believed that the members will hear a great deal about them afterwards. The club now has 50 members and the two previous outings this season have been very successful events. The coming outing at Wandamere promises to even outdo the rest. This is evident from the fact that several cases of the new temperance drink, "Non-Ju," have been ordered. This is the official drink of the club, and all members declare that it is the best drink going.

LONG SEPARATION.

Mrs. Delmotte Meets Sister and Brothers After Forty-Five Years.

There was an interesting and happy reunion last evening at the home of Mrs. Jennie Browning, 1035 Blaine avenue, when Mrs. Mary Ann Delmotte met a brother and two sisters for the first time in about 45 years. Mrs. Delmotte came here from Toledo, O., to attend the Grand Army encampment. Her husband is a Grand Army man but was unable to make the journey.

Her relatives here are Mrs. Livinia Morris, Mrs. Jennie Browning, sisters, and John H. Robins, a brother. Frank Browning and Edwin Morris of this city were at the reunion.

Mrs. Morris, Mrs. Browning and Mr. Robins came here in 1864, leaving their little sister in Ohio. The meeting of the sisters and brother after so long a time was a most happy one. Mrs. Delmotte will remain here for a month or so.

CAUGHT A TARTAR, TARTAR CAUGHT TOO

Jap Beats Off Hold-Up. Is Himself Beaten by Police.

HE MUST CLUB SOME ONE

So Hastening Officer Landed on Inoffensive But Excited Victim of Attempted Robbery.

Will Powers, highwayman, caught a Tartar Saturday night when, masked and armed with a revolver, he attempted to hold up a Japanese rooming house at 28 Pollard court. When Powers appeared at the door of the rooming house, or cabin, about 10 o'clock, with his demand that the occupants throw up their hands, instead of the expected compliance the Japs grappled with him, dragged him inside, and after beating him to insensibility, bound him with a rope.

While this was going on, one of the Japs ran through the streets calling for the assistance of the police and firing a revolver to attract attention. In doing this he became an unfortunate victim, as the police, hurrying to the scene, mistook him for the object of their search and it was only after he had been knocked down with the butt end of a revolver, and when he was lying on the ground, that it was discovered that he had really been the men who had captured the highwayman.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Saturday night Powers, masked and accompanied by a negro, appeared at the door of the Japanese rooming house. When it was opened by C. Urata, he was met by the two men, who drew their revolvers and faced Powers leveled revolver. Urata grabbed the barrel of the gun and screamed for help. A dozen Japs rushed to his assistance, and the struggle Powers was overpowered, while the negro made his escape.

During the turmoil a Greek ran to the house of S. G. Phillips, No. 55 Pollard court, where C. A. Pickett was visiting, and told the two men that the Japs were beating a man to death in their home. Pickett and Phillips ran out to see what was going on and reached the door just as Urata came out firing a revolver and crying for the police. The police were already on the scene in response to a summons, and mistaking the excited Jap for the supposed hold-up, went after him. When the mistake was discovered they hastened to the house, where they found Urata and his wife lying on the floor bruised, beaten and almost insensible. He was brought to the city jail, where he is pending the charge against him of attempted robbery. The Jap was also taken to the emergency hospital where his wound from the blow of the butt end of a revolver, on the head, is being treated.

POLICE COURT PICKINGS.

The Greek American Grocery company, through its principal, was arraigned in Judge Bowman's court this morning on a charge of selling an adulterated article of food, or specifically, substituting cod oil for olive oil. A plea of not guilty was entered and the hearing set for Oct. 4.

Charles Reynolds, the alleged pickpocket caught at Salt Lake Friday night, was arraigned this morning on a charge of attempting to commit grand larceny, and took until tomorrow morning to enter his plea. The complainant in the case is F. Miller, who alleges he caught Reynolds while the latter was attempting to pick his pocket containing $55, a gold watch and a diamond ring.

E. P. Willard, who was arrested following an altercation with Joseph Barthalo, which occurred at Redman's barn and during which Willard drew a knife and inflicted a wound upon Barthalo, was arraigned this morning and pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault with a deadly weapon. In his defense he pleaded insanity and the custody of the sheriff pending his hearing Sept. 10.

MRS. MAIR DEAD.

Well Known and Highly Esteemed Resident of Ninth Ward.

Another faithful Latter-day Saint passed to the great beyond, when on Saturday night, Aug. 14, between 9 and 10 o'clock, the spirit of Mary Mackay Mair took its flight.

Mrs. Mair was born in Aberdeen, Scotland, Feb. 17, 1821. Her father, James Mackay, and her mother, Margaret Gordon. She was the only one of her family to join the Church, which she did when 18 years old, emigrating to Utah in 1841, and leaving her near and dear to her, for the sake of the gospel. From the time she made up her mind to become a Latter-day Saint up to the last, she was an indefatigable church worker and an earnest advocate of the principles of her religion. She was president of the Relief society of the Ninth ward from 1882 to 1892, when advancing age prevented her from further performing the duties of that position. Here as in every position of life she showed herself to be a woman of unusual executive ability. Left a widow with a young family of seven children, she was compelled to work day and night for means for its support, and thus was able to contend with her bravely struggled on, manifesting lofty courage and fortitude. Although she had an almost irresistible will and naturally a strong constitution, yet her ripened age and a consequent of the trials she had passed through, she had finally to succumb to the inevitable.

Mrs. Mair had a sympathetic and kindly heart and could never see persons go hungry or cold, although it might take her last penny to satisfy their needs. She lived an upright, pure life, and was an unusual determination to do the right and just thing in accordance with her best judgment. Her faithfulness to convictions, purity of soul, honesty of purpose, industry and brave struggle against misfortunes entitled her to a joyful rest and the reward of the righteous. She leaves behind a host of friends, her sons, daughters, grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Funeral services were held in the Ninth ward chapel this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

NATIONAL GUARD STRIKES TENTS

Citizen Soldiers and Men of Fifteenth Infantry Break Up Camp.

PLEASANT AND OTHERWISE.

Preponderance of Memories, However, Are That the Time Was Well and Profitably Spent.

Striking their tents soon after daybreak, the men of the Fifteenth Infantry and the National Guard of Utah left camp yesterday and now nothing remains of Camp J. C. Cutler but the memories of it—some of them are pleasant memories and some others are not, but the pleasant memories are in the preponderant number. All agree that the camp has been a profitable one for the guardsmen. There are those who offer criticisms of many details, but there always are such persons and some of the criticisms have come to be regarded largely as part of camp routine.

The companies of the southern battalion, D E F and G, under command of Maj. Fred Kammerman, struck tents Saturday evening and then pitched a camp of shelter tents in which they slept until morning. They were mustered Saturday evening and paid and made ready to leave camp at an early hour Sunday morning. Immediately after breakfast they left camp and as a farewell the band met them as they were leaving camp and then headed their column to the Rio Grande tracks near Sugar where they took the train for their stations at Mt. Pleasant, Richfield, Mantle and Ephraim.

The battery broke camp with the morning gun and immediately after they were mustered marched out of camp with all their impedimenta. The band met them and gave them a happy tune to cheer them on the beginning of their journey. Upon arrival here the horses had to be returned to Springfield, which was not a pleasant task after the breaking of camp and the march to town over dusty roads. Captain Webb declared the campaign this summer to have been one of the most profitable ever spent by his battery. The first week of his summer program was spent in a practise march and target practise in Dade canyon. He was accompanied by Lieut. O. O. Ellis and the time was spent with much enjoyment and profit to the batteriesmen.

WITH THE SIGNAL CORPS.

The Signal corps, which has been practically detached from the remainder of the guard, has spent the time in the working out of problems in information, making trips into the canyons near the camp site, laying wire as they went, and making every hour of the camp count for something. The men are much enthused and when they broke camp gave vent to their feelings with three rousing cheers. "Sixty men or bust," was the slogan of the day, and the winter energies of the organization and the men declare that when they go to maneuvers next fall they will be ready to show the regular signal corps how to do things properly. Maj. Arasmith of the Fifteenth Infantry visited the Signal corps camp yesterday just before camp was struck and declared that he had seen many alleged signal corps men in various states, but that he had not before seen one that could "deliver the goods," to use his own expression.

INFANTRY COMPANIES.

The infantry companies were somewhat slow in getting to work. Before the big parade of last Wednesday they had hardly started to drill and were not in the pink of condition to participate. Had the parade been Saturday, however, there would have been a vast difference in the appearance of the regular officers were assigned to the militia companies as instructors and regular non-commissioned officers to the squads.

The results of the instruction given in this way surprised even the men themselves. All along the line regret was expressed that such a program was not adopted earlier in the camp. The splendid condition in which the companies found themselves Friday after two days of such instruction was displayed in the competition for the governor's cup, which was won by Company B, stationed at Ogden. The drill put up by Company H of this city and the Ogden company when the first and second cups were being held, drew expressions of admiration from regular officers and many of the enlisted men of the Fifteenth.

KAMMERMAN RESPONSIBLE.

For such success as marked the camp, the credit is largely due to Maj. Fred Kammerman, who was in the greater portion of the time in command of the camp. Col. Plummer, being a member of the rifle team, was at the team practice most of the time and did not give his personal attention to a great part of the camp work. He was in camp, however, in time to command at retreat parade, at which time Maj. Kammerman took to the field and displayed his ability as a field officer in a manner that won him many compliments.

Visitors to the camp who have had experience in military matters, and there were many of them, including G. A. R. visitors to Utah, former regular army officers and former officers in the National Guard, were struck by several features that hardly drew forth marked expressions of approval. Among them was the location of the camp hospital. This tent was pitched between two company kitchens and less than 30 feet distant from the ranges used for cooking the meals for the members of the two companies. The location of the tent at such a point was criticized frequently by visitors. Among the men there was almost universal complaint of the limitations of the ration and the poor drinking water furnished. The dietary methods of the staff departments of the camp administration were commented upon by those who suffered because of the camp sickness, which seized a great many of the men the last two or three days of the camp.

SHUBERT'S DEAL FAILS.

Their Attractions Will Not Come to Salt Lake—Mack to Remain.

The Shuberts are not coming to Salt Lake this season. The contract for a series of performances at the Grand theater was canceled last morning by Mr. Pelton of the Denver Theatrical syndicate which has control of the Grand. Instead of the Shuberts appearing at the local playhouse, it will be used by the Willard Mack company for the entire season, beginning Aug. 23. The theater is now being thoroughly renovated and will be in good condition by the opening date.

Mr. Pelton is in receipt of a letter from the Shuberts, an extract of which says: "Advise that you give no booking to stock company as we haven't attractions enough."

In speaking of this, Mr. Pelton said today:

"That the Shuberts intended to come here there is not the least doubt. Salt Lake City and the Grand appear on their list of bookings as you may see on this letterhead. But the trouble is they could not give us enough attractions to justify us in keeping the theater open, and under these conditions, as a business proposition it would not be a good one.

You see, all they could give us would be seven attractions in three months, three each. For instance there would be a jump from Sept. 19 to Oct. 18, and another to Nov. 18, so that the house would be in less than one-third of the time. Therefore, we would not be justified in holding the house for them."

Mr. Pelton stated that the theater will be opened by the Willard Mack company, as follows: Willard Mack, Blanche Douglas, Ann McNaughton, Lillian Babcock, James Rennie, Clay Clement, Jr., Frederick Allen, Arling Alcine, Lee Miller, Joseph Kennedy, Ira Earl and Agnes Bilan.

For the opening week the attraction will be the scenes of the Golden West, followed the next week by "Salome Jane," "The Squaw Man," with Mr. Mack in the title role, will be the offering for the third week, and the fourth will see "Raffles."

The special season inaugurated at the Grand under the management of Frank M. Eldredge came to an end last week. Mr. Eldredge kept his promise to the public and gave a series of entertaining and high class plays. His friends will regret that the season should be so short, as successful as the artistic, the reasons being that the hot weather and the out of door attractions during G. A. R. week were too powerful competitors.

TO REGULATE AUTOS.

When the city council meets tonight, the members will have two weeks' business before them to transact. There is an unusual amount of routine matter to come up from the committees as well as several estimates in favor of contractors.

Councilman Black is preparing an ordinance which will regulate the speed limit of automobiles and motorcycles. The speed limit will be fixed at 30 miles an hour and the punishment for violation of the proposed ordinance will be a jail sentence.

Also compel the owners of machines or chauffeurs to remove their automobiles from the street when not in use. The drivers of motor cars will have to cross intersections at right angles instead of cutting across in any direction. It is probable that this ordinance will not be introduced until next Monday night.
